EVIDENCE AGAINST PHILP.

ERASURES ON THE ENVELOPE DETECTED. WHAT EXPERTS IN HANDWRITING SAY-PRILE'S PECULIARITY IN SPELLING WORDS ENDING IN "HES"-THE DEFENCE OBJECT TO AN ADJOURN-MENT-JUDGE DAVIS'S DECISION-EVIDENCE OF POST OFFICE OFFICIALS IN REGARD TO THE

The principal point in the Philp investigafion yesterday was the evidence in regard to the envelope of the Morey letter. It was shown that its address had been written over crased writing, and in one place the microscope showed what had been erased. The post office stamps, which are partially erased, showed that the letter must have been delivered from one of the uptown stations of this city, and that the date of its receipt at such station must have been January 12 or 22. Testimony was given to show that the bandwriting was that of Philp. One of the witnesses familiar with Philp's habits of writ-Ing stated that one of his peculiarities was in asing "y" instead of "1e" in the plural of touns ending in "ies." The word "comsanys " appears in the Morey letter.

TESTIMONY OF EXPERTS AND OFFICIALS. The crowd which surrounded the doors of the Court of Oyer and Terminer, to which the Philip libel ease has been transferred, was far greater yesterday than the crowd which struggled for admittance on the previous day. Long before 10 o'clock the room was backed, and yet the officers who guarded the door made a pretence of passing none except members of the bar, reporters and those directly interested in the case. The number of newspaper men present was large, and there were also many prominent Democrats present among them was Abram S. Hewitt, who sat at the back of the jury-box. Whenever he stood up the crowd gazed at him with as much curious inquiry as they do at the person charged with the libel. The same counsel were present as on the preceding May-Messrs. Bell, Bliss, and Stoughton for the presecution, and Messrs. Brooke, Pryor. Veeder and Howe, for the defendant. Mr. Hart was present, and there was as much speculation as to whether he would produce the envelope of the Morey letter as there had been in regard to the letter itself Thursday.

As soon as Judge Davis took his seat, Mr. Hart was called to the stand. Mr. Howe then produced the envelope referred to, and the witness left the stand without any question having been put to him. | state without entering into general details what TESTIMONY AS TO HANDWRITING.

A. F. Sonthworth, of Boston, an expert in handwriting, was then called and examined by Mr. Bell.

had examined the exhibits from "A" to "K," and he should say they were in the handwriting of Philp. He also believed the photo-intographed letter, called the Morey letter, which appeared in Trath, was in Philp's handwriting. He had said so before he knew that Philp was enarged with the forgery. When asked to point out any peculiarity in the writing. Mr. Leet replied that Philp had a peculiar habit of writing words ending in the phiral "ies" as "charittes," "families," or "companies," with "ys" instead of "ies." It was a habit which the writings had noticed on many occasions. He noticed it in the Morey letter in the word "companys,"

AN ADJOURNMENT ASKED, Mr. Bell at this point asked for an adjournment on the ground that the envelope of the Morey letter had only been received in the morning and the prosecution wished to produce witnesses from Lynn and Washington in regard to it.

and Washington in regard to it.

Mr. Brooke—We object to any adjournment, and suggest to your Henor that you have no power to adjourn this examination. The stands requires that this examination. The stands requires that this examination in the stands requires that this examination. The stands requires that this examination shall be proceeded with without delay, except by consent of both sides, and we do not consent.

Judge Davis—Will you show me that statute!

Mr. Brooke—I cannot give the language, but that is the construction of the stands.

Judge Davis—So far we have proceeded without delay.

Mr. Brooke—We are not objecting to what has already gone on, but we are objecting to the motion of the gentleman for an adjournment now.

Judge Davis—I is a matter of discretion for the presiding magistrate to give time to any party or not.

General Pryor—There is no necessity imaginable for an a journment of this proceeding. The defendant may be permitted to go on with his testimony in substantiation of the genulneness of this letter, and the gentlemen on the other side can go on with their evidence afterward. These gentlemen have anticipated our defence and have undertaken to impeach this letter, and now at a critical stage of the election they propose to interrupt the proceedings with an adjournment. I simply ask that we be permitted to take up our case, supmissing to give them rull liberty to produce any corroborative testimony.

Mr. Stoughton—We propose to show that the envelope was unquesticularly forgod. We find that it has been tampered with, and we propose to show the circumstances under which the stamps were placed on the letter.

Mr. Brooke also spoke on the motion to adjourn, letter.

Mr. Brooke also spoke on the motion to adjourn,
Mr. destroy about and Mr. Bell said that there were features about the Morey envelope so extraordinary that it would be entirely improper for the prosecution to close its case without going further into the matter. He asked for an adjournment until Monday. Mr. Bliss then addressed the Court.

DECISION OF JUDGE DAVIS.

intense interest:

On the conclusion of his remarks Judge Davis spoke as follows, his decision being listened to with adopted, in response to the statement of Mayor Bros.

This is a case, as I have already indicated, of the gravest National elamineance, although the efficiency and the statement of the statement didate, would, as a matter of course, have a most serious off-cel. But if it be not genuine and a forgery, every thinking men not only will admit, but will at once entertain with pleasure the thought that the forger should be promptly and severely condemned. Now, under such circumstances, I felt it to be my duty to sit as an examining magistrate; to issue my warrant, not for the purpose of subserving the interests of any party. No approach to me has ever been made on that subject by any person connected with any pirty, and it is my intention so to conduct this case as to reach no other end but the absolute and perfect truth.

This application for delay would, ordinarily, be promptly granted by any magistrate. It is in conformity with universal practice and, beside, on the part of the prosecution exita delays have been occa-dened by the non-production of the letter for which the Court was obliged to postpone the hearing in the first pace sometimg more than three hours, and then, by an appeal to what must appear to every one to be a very street construction of interest to every one to be a very street construction of interest to every one to be a very street construction of interest to every one to be a very street construction of interest to every one to be a very street construction of interest to every one to be a very street construction of interest to every one to be a very street construction of interest to every one to be a very street construction of interest to every one to be a very street construction of interest of the construction, where his connections saw the innocalable expediency of having the crevelope produced. Ever hours were asked for that; so that in the aggregate a negrect to produce the page, the necessity of the preduced to be determined. our carried by the hours when she are the paper, the neces y of the preduction of which was superent to every e, especially the counsel, has already posiponed this restigation for at least half a day or more. Now, I do a altribute to the counsel present the bank of this Investigation for at least half a day or more. Now, I do not attribute to the counsel present the fault of this. Of course the letter was not to their possession, but in the handwriting of Mr. Garrield, the defence should have promptly and speedly presented it, instead or staying the hearing of this case more chan half a day.

But I feel forcibly the weight of the remarks made by the learned counse, Mr. Prior, in the suggestion he made. I am not willing to be put in a position for one moment of having it toolging by anyone that that Court desires to exclude any face on either she that will tend to shed bring upon the full character of this transaction; and I can see, as you suggested, that a delay of that kindings have the effect upon some minds so desposed, as to lead them to suppose that the Court has but it self to affect the effect upon some minds so desposed, as to lead them to suppose that the Court has lent itself to affect the effect upon some minds so desposed, as to lead them to suppose that the two that is due to myself that I should not occatal, in deciding this question, to hold that the records should have the amplest opportunities to produce their evidence, and that the time of this Court most be required before this case is closed, and that the defence shall also have the fallest opportunity to produce their evidence, and that the time of this Court most be occupied by one side or the other. It is about the hour for a recess. In the meantime if the people have any witnesses to produce to me from the Post Office of this city, let them send for them at the close of the recess and I shall proceed to me from the Post Office of this city, let them send for the mat the close of the recess and I shall proceed to me from the Post Office of this city, let them send for the mat the close of the people the defence will, of course, give way for the needly of the defence will, of course, give way for the needly of the defence will, of course, give way for the interposition of such evidence as they may produc for the prosecution arriving shortly after. The room was more closely crowded than before, many of those present having remained during the recess in order to retain their scats. Withiam E. Hogan was called by Mr. Bliss. Mr. Brooke raised an objection to Mr. Bliss examining the witness, as he (Mr. Bliss) was the complainant in the case. The objection was overruled, however, and Mr. Bliss proceeded with the examination. The witness had examined the envelope of the Morey letter under the microscope during the recess, and was asked to was the result of his examination. The witness said that the figure "2" in the stamp at the back of the envelope was printed by type;

to the stamp on the Morey envelope denoting the date of its receipt. A letter coming from Washington and addressed to Massachusetts, he said, would not come into the New-York Post Office, and would not bear the mark " New-York" stamped on it. The stamp upon the Morey envelope bearing this mark was then shown to him, and he produced other letters of the city delivery, from various stations, which bore a similar stamp.

Henry E. Pierson, Assistant Postmaster of New-York City, stated that he had a full experience of all the departments of the city Post Office, and testified that a letter from Washington would go directly, and the pouch containing it would not be opened at New-York. John Richards, another Post Office officer, described how a letter address to the city would be treated at the Post Office, especially in regard to the stamping of the date on it. The types used in the stamping of the date on it. The types used in the stamping of the date on it. The types used in the stamping of the date on it. The types used in the stamping of the date on it. The types used in the stamping of the date on it. The types used in the stamping of the proofs were kept. He produced a number of them, which were handed to General Pryor, and the examination rested while General Pryor compared them with the stamp on the Morey civelope. Then the envelope was handed to the witness, and his attention was called to the figure "2" on the stamp on the reverse side of it. He expressed the opinion that this was, before the crassire, a domble ligure. Another figure could not have been behind it, because of its close proximity to the rim, so that it must be dated either January 12 or 22. The proofs of the stamps for these dates were not among these treduced: so Mr. Bliss asked leave to call the Henry E. Pierson, Assistant Postmaster of Newones of the stamps for these dates were not among one produced; so Mr. Bliss asked leave to call the these again when they had been found, for the rpose of comparing them with the stamp on the

John T. Strond, chief clerk of the rankway mail John I. Strand, that there is a few ranway main service running from Washington to New-York, gave testimony as to the way in which letters for Massachusetts, coming from Washington, were han-died, snowing that the packages containing them were not opened in the New-York office. Mr. Ames was then recalled, but, as Judge Davis oned of severe neuralgic pains, the Court at oint-half past 4-was adjourned to 11 o'clock

GREAT DEMONSTRATION IN NEWARK. ARADE OF WORKINGMEN AND REPRESENTATIVES OF THE PROFESSIONS-DIVISIONS OF THE PRO-CESSION-PINE EFFECT OF THE UNIFORMS-TELLING MOTTOES AND DESIGNS-ALL TRADES TAKE PART.

Despite the chilly rain that drizzled down persistently yesterday afternoon, the tariff parade at Newark proved to be a brilliant and remarkable was preeminently a trade display, and the different trades were represented in the parade by an exhibition of their implements and the products of their manufacture. The procession occupied two hours in passing a given point, was nearly four miles in length, and was estimated to number from 12,000 to 15,000 men. From an early hour in the afternoon dense crowds througed the streets through which the procession was to pass. Many of the stores and factories were close were conspic ous for the bunting displayed. The procharge of E. W. Davis, Grand Marshal, S. and sailors and a long delegation of prominent business men. Many colored voters followed, and formed one of the features of the procession.

The Second Division was noticeable for varied and beautiful uniforms, making the most picturesque part of the display. There were the Lincoln Cavairy, conspicuous by gilt caps; Battery A, of Orange, brithant in red and black uniforms and red caps; the Bloomfield, Montelair, Caidweil, Livingston, Milburn, Cinton and Orange organizations; batteries, regiments, engineers' corps and varions ward associations. Interpersed among them were companies of young men in red, white and blue Zonave costumes, and white and red turbans.

EFFECT OF THE PARADE.

Thus a great wave of brilliant and variegated color swept steadily up Broad-st., bearing aloft flags and banners of blue and yellow. Battle axes and gilt helmete followed turbans and torches wreathed with flowers. To a long line of white uniforms sucflowers. To a long line of white uniforms succeeded ranks of blue Zouave trousers, white and blue blouses and blue caps. Behind a line of red helmets, above which showe formidable-looking lancers, came a company of horsemen, wearing military slouch hats, looped with gold cord. Firemen, in hinge black hats and red shirts, were followed by silvery helmets, and red and white tasselled caps. One band, red-coated, riganite with beer-skin caps, had no souter passed than another came in sight with gray Bungarian caps, and bright capes inced with gray Gungarian caps, and bright capes inced with gray of the dark faces of coloied voters were made still more conspicuous by the contrast to their white shirts and caps. White leggings sphashed recklessly through the mind, thirteen bands crashed out inspiriting airs, horses praneed, the through some firm the crowded windows and housetops hats, handkercheis and flags waved a welcome to the gallant Republicans. Little boys, chai in brilliant Zouave costinues, rode on the guns of the battery waving flags. The most portly colored men seemed by a singular coincidence to have been selected as standard-bearers, and they appeared fully alive to the dignity of the situation, in spite of recommendations from irreverent urchins to "take in that stomach."

About 4 o'clock the procession was still filing down Broad-st., while the first part, which turned at Vancerpuel-st. was marching up. Twilight began to fall before the procession broke up.

A SAD INCIDENT. Thomas Slater, a member of the firm of Enos Richard son & Co., manufacturing Jewellers at No. 21 Maiden riging at the head of the jewellers' contingent. At Broad and Cedar-sts, he was seen to fall from his horse. He was picked up and carried into a neighboring drug store, where he gasped several times and then expired. There were no bruises on his body, and death is supposed to have been caused by heari obsesse.

SITES FOR THE WORLD'S FAIR.

SETTING FORTH THE ADVANTAGES OF SEVERAL OF THOS PROPOSED,

The Committee on Sites of the United States International Commission held a meeting at No. 317 Broadway, yesterday, to hear the claims of the advocates of the several proposed sites for the World's Fair to be held in 1883. Samuel A. Haines presided. The claims of the Manhattan Square site were presented by Professor Bickmore. He said that the Manhattan Museum Building might be completed and used as one of the exhibition buildings, and thus be made a matter of economy the city. This area was the only unoccupie and near the central part of the city, and was ac-ground near the central part of the city, and was accessible by the Hudson River water front and the West Side railroad lines.

An argument in favor of Port Morris was presented by William S. Brown. The steamboats from New-York to the New-Lingland States, he said, passed directly by this site, and strandocats could connect with Brooklyn, Jersey City, and Hoboken in one hour. In audition to the present railroad facilities new lines were soon to be constructed under authority given by the Kapid Transi Commissioners.

J. J. R. Croes read a poper advocating the selection of the grounds known as the Fleetwood site, which includes Fleetwood Park in Morrisania, Passengers, he said, could be conveyed to the grounds by the New-York and New-Haven, Harlem, and New-York Central and Hudson River Railroids. Visitors arriving by the Eric, Pennsylvania, and other roads from the West, could be transferred by steamers to Port Morris or Mott Haven, and there by rail to the grounds, which were spacious. The advantages of the Washington Heights site were presented by Lawson N. Fuller, This site extends from One-hundred-and-turity-fifth-st, to One-hundred-and-torty-hith-st, and has for its interal boundaries the Eoulev and and Harlem River. One of its chief features, he said, was the beauty of its location and the extensive views commanded by its elevation. It was easy of access, and could be reached by all of the railroad lines running north and south and by steamboats on beth the Hudson and Harlem rivers.

G. S. Lespunses and it was very necessary to take the value of several proposed grounds into the Harlem site, 186 acres, a market value of $9,000,000; the Washington Heights, 447 acres, a market value of $6,000,000; the Inwood site, 135 acres, a market value of $7,000,000; and the Fleetwood Park site, 400 acres, a market value of $7,000,000.

A meeting for the hardeness of facility of the site of $7,000,000. A meeting for the hearing of further arguments will be held Friday next at 2:30 p. m.
